LIMIT ON WAR PROFITS URGED BY STRONG UNIT

Congressmen Defy F.D.R. In Move To Revise Labor Law During Strife

CLOSED SHOP OPPOSED

Michigan Solon Would Pay Combat Soldiers Same As Men In Industry

WASHINGTON, March 19—Defying President Roosevelt, War and Navy department chiefs and Speaker Rayburn, a strong House group today opened its drive for passage of a sweeping, all-inclusive measure to suspend the 40 hour week, outlaw the closed shop, and limit war profits to six percent.

Called by Rep. Vinson (D) Ga., ardent supporter of the bill, a joint naval and military affairs committee opened hearings on the matter with Rep. Howard Smith (D) Ga., author of the measure, urging its speedy passage.

Also called as witnesses before the committee were Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, Assistant Navy Secretary Ralph Bard and Admiral Alexander H. Van Keulen, chief of the bureau of ships.

Further opposition may be forthcoming when, on the other side of the capital, the Senate appropriations military affairs subcommittee, probing the production program, hears War Production Czar Donald M. Nelson and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Chance Not So Good
Although members of the House naval committee, especially those from the South, continued to report that they were swamped with mail from the "folk back home" urging favorable action, most observers today believed the bill has less than an even chance of enactment after the outspoken opposition.

The labor situation was attacked from another front with Rep. Hoffman (R) Mich., urging passage of his bill to provide that men in the armed forces in combat areas receive pay "equal to the average paid to members of labor unions employed in industries."

President Roosevelt left off the opposition at his last press conference, stating in unequivocal terms that he saw no need for labor legislation at this time.

RUBBER SUPPLY OF GREAT SIZE READY FOR U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 19—Eleven Latin American nations and the Free French are prepared to make available to the United States thousands of tons of rubber to meet civilian and military defense needs of this country, Eliot E. Simpson, director of the Dressage Rubber company, of New York, said today.

In a statement concerning available sources of rubber, Simpson, who has been requested to testify before three congressional committees, said evidence now at hand indicates "there is no necessity for depriving the American people of their motor cars because of any danger of a rubber shortage."

Simpson cited foreign consular officials and other sources as claiming that there are 300,000,000 rubber trees in Brazil, 20,000,000 rubber trees in Mexico, and more than 95,000 trees in Honduras.

JURORS IN SESSION

AMERICAN BUILDS BOOTH AROUND PUBLIC PHONE

MELBOURNE, March 19—The parade of anecdotes which may be expected to stream from Australia now that Yanks of the A.E.F. are introducing American ways in the commonwealth was headed today with a yarn involving urgent need of a telephone.

Informed by local officials that installation of a phone would be "rushed through in a few weeks," an American wishing to get the job done picked out a site where a public telephone already was in service and built his office around the phone booth.

The plant will be built and operated by National Fireworks Inc., through funds made available by the United States Navy department.

H. B. King and William Trethaway of the National Fireworks Inc., revealed for the first time Wednesday that the plant would be used for the manufacture of medium caliber ammunition for the Navy.

The plant, a $2,000,000 war industry, will employ 3,000 persons, including 1,500 men and 1,500 women, according to Mr. King.

Main plant of National Fireworks, Inc. is at West Hanover, Mass. In addition, the company has plants in operation or under construction in New Jersey, Maryland, Tennessee and Virginia.

TOOL MAKER GIVEN FOUR REASONS TO BE EFFICIENT
DETROIT, March 19—A tool maker in a Detroit arms plant today had a four-fold reason for bending every effort to speed production of war material.

Lester Crofton, the worker, was informed by his sister, from Hope, Va., that his four younger brothers have been killed when fighting for the United States in Pacific areas.

"I'm kind of glad I got it all at once," he said, adding: "Badly as it has made me feel, it has also made me realize what a tremendous effort everyone in the United States must make to see that we win the war and win it as quickly as possible."

Legislation To Put Boys 18 And 19 In Training Being Prepared

Hershey Is Ready To Add More In Production Of Necessary Arms

WASHINGTON, March 19—In another step toward complete mobilization of America's manpower, national draft officials today planned to issue an order soon calling for registration of the nation's 18 and 19 year old youths and men from 45 to 64, inclusive, during the last week of April.

At the same time, it was learned that arrangements are being made to rush legislation through Congress for military training for the 18 and 19 year olds so that they can be immediately inducted into the Army when they reach their 20th birthday.

All men 18 to 64, inclusive are covered under the Draft Act. Men from 21 to 34, inclusive, and youths 20, and men from 34 to 44 inclusive, already have been registered. The third draft lottery covering the 9,000,000 men 20 years old and men from 34 to 44 was held Tuesday night.

In launching it, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, indicated strongly that workers would be conscripted for war industries. He said flatly that the job of keeping men at work turning out planes and ships and tanks and guns would be given preference even over furnishing men for the military services.

To Call Workers
A careful checkup revealed that Hershey was making plans for complete mobilization of the United States' manpower. Conscription of workers for war plants may start within 60 days, if present plans are carried out.

Under the proposal, workers in vital war industries would be frozen in their jobs at prevailing wage levels for the duration of (Continued on Page Two)

BRAZIL ARRESTS THREE GERMANS FOR ACTIVITIES

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 19—The Brazilian government today smashed forward with its attempt to break up a well-organized axis ring in this country by arresting three prominent Germans in the state of Paraiba, all of whom allegedly confessed Nazi activities.

The chief prisoner was Otto Pruntzke, local leader of the so-called "German comrades' organization" in Joao Pessoa, capital of the strategic northern state of Paraiba. The organization is connected with the National Socialist legion.

In the raid which resulted in Pruntzke's arrest, authorities confiscated a large amount of propaganda material, maps of Paraiba printed in German, and pictures.

A letter signed Hans Albrecht, believed to be a German group leader, instructing Pruntzke to intensify his espionage activities, also was seized.

An unidentified German photographer and a traveling Nazi named Eerner Gunter who gave free lessons in German were arrested with Pruntzke.

USE OF GAS ON EAST COAST CUT BY 20 PERCENT

WASHINGTON, March 19—Beginning today motorists along the eastern seaboard and in Oregon and Washington will have to get along on less gasoline, but they were assured that what they can buy won't cost them any more.

As an order went into effect curtailing deliveries of gasoline by 20 percent in 17 Atlantic states, the District of Columbia and the two western states, the Office of Price Administration fixed a price ceiling on the motor fuel.

Effective next Monday, the order "freezes" filling station prices for gasoline at the March 13 levels. The order was temporary and is expected to be followed within 60 days by a permanent regulation.

In addition to gas reductions, filling stations must not operate over 12 hours a day in a 72 hour week. This is expected to result in general week day operations from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. and gasless Sundays.

Four Questioned About Body Taken From Trunk

ATLANTA, Ga., March 19—While authorities pressed their investigation into the death of attractive, brown-haired Mrs. Mildred Seymour Williams, whose body was found stuffed in a water-soaked basement of an Atlanta home, four persons were held incommunicado at police headquarters today in connection with the case.

The four, booked on charges of suspicion of murder and subjected to a four-hour grilling during the night, are members of the family in whose house the body of the pretty, 22-year-old shoe store clerk was found.

Police identified the four held as Mrs. Minnie Lee Griffin, 46; T. E. Griffin, 26, a son; J. W. Griffin, 16, a son, and K. D. Hubert, 26, a son-in-law of Mrs. Griffin.

Authorities refused comment as they lodged the four in jail, without benefit of calls or visitors until the investigation was completed.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that a piece of rope, similar to the

FAST WORKING YANKEES WIN AUSTRALIAN BRIDES

MELBOURNE, March 19—While Australians have elected to take their military orders from an American by requesting leadership of General Douglas MacArthur, it appeared today that many boys of the A.E.F. now in the commonwealth will take orders at a future date from fair Australian girls.

One doughboy, according to the Australian Associated Press, already has carried out the American Army tradition of "getting things done" by wooing, winning and wedding an Australian girl. A companion now is said to be engaged while other American soldiers indicated they may marry here.

Five Fugitives Caught After Texas Abduction

AUSTIN, Tex., March 19—Five fugitives from the Texas prison system were captured by state and local police today after they kidnapped a rural mail carrier in the little Bastrop county town of Paige and forced him to drive them in a wild dash for liberty.

Three of the convicts surrendered when Mailman Alfred Forrester's car was halted by officers near Brenham. The other two fled afoot in a wooded section near Round Top in Fayette county. Officers immediately followed with bloodhounds and at 10:30 a. m., Fayette county Sheriff Will Loessin telephoned state headquarters in Austin that the fugitives, although armed with two pistols and a shotgun, gave up without a fight.

Forrester was not injured.

ALLIED AIRMEN KNOCK OUT FIVE MORE JAP SHIPS

Direct Hit Scored On Big Cruiser Off New Britain; Total Damaged Now 28

French Radio Says Invasion Flotillas Approach From Two Directions

By LEO V. DOLAN
INS War Editor
American and Australian flyers under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur exchanged sharp blows with the enemy today as reports indicated that the Japs may strike soon with reorganized invasion forces at the Australian coast.

The United Nations airmen scored the most telling blow with a blasting attack that knocked out five enemy ships off New Britain island. A Japanese heavy cruiser suffered a direct hit, two other vessels were damaged by near misses, and direct hits were scored on two other enemy craft.

These new successes brought the number of enemy vessels sunk or damaged in recent attacks by MacArthur's flyers to at least 28. The Navy department at Washington yesterday listed 23 Japanese ships as sunk or badly damaged by the revived United Nations air forces in the south Pacific.

In addition the American-Australian flyers smashed again at the Japanese-occupied airdrome at Koepang, on the island of Timor, blasting ground installations, shattering runways and starting fires so large that they were visible 50 miles distant.

Fleet Reported On Way

But there was a noticeable stepping up in Japanese action also—and this coincided with reports of a Japanese fleet moving toward Australia. The enemy sent fighter planes swooping down on shipping near the Cape York islands but no damage was reported.

Australian authorities heard reports that Japanese ground forces are now moving down the Markham valley on the island of New Guinea and that an engagement between the Japs and defending Australians would be under way shortly. At the same time, heavy enemy bombers raided Port Moresby on the southeast coast of New Guinea, with the attackers concentrating on shipping in the harbor. Anti-aircraft threw up a heavy defensive fire and after the first bombing run the enemy planes disappeared at high altitude.

Port Darwin on the northern Australian coast also was said to have been raided by a small force of Japanese bombers which caused only small damage and slight casualties.

Broadcast In France

Reports that an invasion attempt may be launched very soon reached the United States by a markedly circuitous route and there was no confirmation in any responsible source. The reports were broadcast by the Lyons, France, radio which said that two powerful Japanese invasion fleets are approaching Australian shores.

Even the Lyons radio did not claim 100 percent authenticity for the report, stating only that the information had come from unofficial, but reliable sources. The broadcast said the invasion fleets were made up of hundreds of Japanese troop-transports, escorted by heavy naval forces which included aircraft carriers.

One fleet moved out of Java, crossed the Timor sea, and now is approaching the Australian west coast, the broadcast said. The other fleet was said to be moving in through the Coral sea, north-east of the commonwealth.

Four Questioned About Body Taken From Trunk

ATLANTA, Ga., March 19—While authorities pressed their investigation into the death of attractive, brown-haired Mrs. Mildred Seymour Williams, whose body was found stuffed in an automobile trunk in a water-soaked basement of an Atlanta home, four persons were held incommunicado at police headquarters today in connection with the case.

The four, booked on charges of suspicion of murder and subjected to a four-hour grilling during the night, are members of the family in whose house the body of the pretty, 22-year-old shoe store clerk was found.

Police identified the four held as Mrs. Minnie Lee Griffin, 46; T. E. Griffin, 26, a son; J. W. Griffin, 16, a son, and K. D. Hubert, 26, a son-in-law of Mrs. Griffin.

Authorities refused comment as they lodged the four in jail, without benefit of calls or visitors until the investigation was completed.

FAST WORKING YANKEES WIN AUSTRALIAN BRIDES

MELBOURNE, March 19 — While Australians have elected to take their military orders from an American by requesting leadership of General Douglas MacArthur, it appeared today that many boys of the A.E.F. now in the commonwealth will take orders at a future date from fair Australianians.

One doughboy, according to the Australian Associated Press, already has carried out the American Army tradition of "getting things done" by wooing, winning and wedding an Australian girl.

A companion now is said to be engaged while other American soldiers indicated they may marry here.

Attacked By Submarine

Our journey to Australia was highlighted by a midnight enemy submarine attack while we were still a week away from our destination. The convoy suffered no casualties, but it was reported reliably that the heavy cruiser guiding the United States vessels sank the enemy attacker.

U. S. SUB'S CREW WINS HONOR FOR ACTIVITY IN WAR

HONOLULU, March 19—Another gallant United States submarine commander, Lieut. Cmdr. Frank W. Fenno, of Williamsport, Pa., displayed with pride today the Distinguished Service Cross awarded to him by Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, military commandant of Hawaii.

The presentation to Lieut. Cmdr. Fenno, "for extraordinary heroism when operating his submarine in enemy controlled waters in performance of an unusual and hazardous mission for the War department," was made at a ceremony attended by Admiral Chester C. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet, and other ranking Navy and Army officers.

Six other officers on the submarine and 64 enlisted men were awarded silver stars.

The citation to Lieut. Cmdr. Fenno said his conduct was "an example of fearlessness, zeal and devotion to duty which resulted in accomplishment of a mission of great service for the Army."

Officers cited included Lieut. Albert H. Clark, Washington, D. C.; Lieut. Frederick A. Gunn, Long Beach, Cal.; 2nd Lieut. Frederick J. Harfinger, East Nassau, N. Y.; Lieut. (Junior grade) Harry E. Woodworth, Washington, D. C.; Ensign Raymond L. Pitts, Oxford, Cal., and Ensign George H. Schottler, Baltimore.

FIVE FUGITIVES CAUGHT AFTER TEXAS ABDUCTION

AUSTIN, Tex., March 19—Five fugitives from the Texas prison system were captured by state and local police today after they kidnapped a rural mail carrier in the little Bastrop county town of Paige and forced him to drive them in a wild dash for liberty.

Three of the convicts surrendered when Mailman Alfred Forrester's car was halted by officers near Round Top in Fayette county. Officers immediately followed with bloodhounds and at 10:30 a. m., Fayette county Sheriff Will Loessin telephoned state headquarters in Austin that the fugitives, although armed with two pistols and a shotgun, gave up without a fight.

Forrester was not injured.

French Radio Says Invasion Flotillas Approach From Two Directions

By LEO V. DOLAN
INS War Editor
American and Australian flyers under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur exchanged sharp blows with the enemy today as reports indicated that the Japs may strike soon with reorganized invasion forces at the Australian coast.

The United Nations airmen scored the most telling blow with a blasting attack that knocked out five enemy ships off New Britain island. A Japanese heavy cruiser suffered a direct hit, two other vessels were damaged by near misses, and direct hits were scored on two other enemy craft.

These new successes brought the number of enemy vessels sunk or damaged in recent attacks by MacArthur's flyers to at least 28. The Navy department at Washington yesterday listed 23 Japanese ships as sunk or badly damaged by the revived United Nations air forces in the south Pacific.

In addition the American-Australian flyers smashed again at the Japanese-occupied airbase at Koepang, on the island of Timor, blasting ground installations, shattering runways and starting fires so large that they were visible 50 miles distant.

Fleet Reported On Way

But there was a noticeable stepping up in Japanese action also—and this coincided with reports of a Japanese fleet moving toward Australia. The enemy sent fighter planes swooping down on shipping near the Cape York islands but no damage was reported.

Australian authorities heard reports that Japanese ground forces are now moving down the Markham valley on the island of New Guinea and that an engagement between the Japs and defending Australians would be under way shortly. At the same time, heavy enemy bombers raided Port Moresby on the southeast coast of New Guinea, with the attackers concentrating on shipping in the harbor. Anti-aircraft threw up a heavy defensive fire and after the first bombing run the enemy planes disappeared at high altitude.

Port Darwin on the northern Australian coast also was said to have been raided by a small force of Japanese bombers which caused only small damage and slight casualties.

Broadcast In France

Reports that an invasion attempt may be launched very soon reached the United States by a markedly circuitous route and there was no confirmation in any responsible source. The reports were broadcast by the Lyons, France, radio which said that two powerful Japanese invasion fleets are approaching Australian shores.

Even the Lyons radio did not claim 100 percent authenticity for the report, stating only that the information had come from unofficial, but reliable sources. The broadcast said the invasion fleets were made up of hundreds of Japanese troop-transports, escorted by heavy naval forces which included aircraft carriers.

One fleet moved out of Java, crossed the Timor sea, and now is approaching the Australian west coast, the broadcast said. The other fleet was said to be moving in through the Coral sea, northeast of the commonwealth.

ROTARIANS HEAR SAFETY
CHIEF FROM COLUMBUS

Roy Weed, Columbus safety director, appealed to motorists to use common sense in driving when he talked before Rotarians at their luncheon meeting Thursday
noon in Pickaway Arms restaurant.

He urged motorists to "anticipate" what might happen along
any busy highway or at any street
corner in an effort to stop traffic accidents.

Discussing the subject of crime,
Mr. Weed stated that a major crime was committed every 24
seconds somewhere in the United States. He said that one out of every 29 persons is a criminal.

Emphasizing the work of the police department in traffic and
in crime prevention, the Columbus
safety director told Rotarians
that the city made a mistake
when it voted down the two mill
operating levy last fall, curtailing operations of the local police department.

YANKS IN AUSTRALIA

No Americans were lonely over

be the darkest kind of secret, hun-

ROTARIANS HEAR SAFETY
CHIEF FROM COLUMBUS

Roy Weed, Columbus safety director, appealed to motorists to
use common sense in driving when
he talked before Rotarians at their luncheon meeting Thursday
noon in Pickaway Arms restaurant.

He urged motorists to "anticipate" what might happen along
any busy highway or at any street
corner in an effort to stop traffic accidents.

Discussing the subject of crime,
Mr. Weed stated that a major
crime was committed every 24
seconds somewhere in the United States. He said that one out of every 29 persons is a criminal.

Emphasizing the work of the police department in traffic and
in crime prevention, the Columbus
safety director told Rotarians
that the city made a mistake
when it voted down the two mill
operating levy last fall, curtailing operations of the local police department.

PRIOR TO HOLIDAYS

Italian port, thousands of Australians lined the shore to give the Americans a greeting which will long be remembered. The ship on which I was a passenger—a former Dutch luxury liner—was commandeered at the port and its valuable cargo of dozens of warplanes unloaded to the great delight of the Australians at the wharf, who muttered over and over:

"Everything is going to be all right now. Thank God, the Yanks are here at last."

No Americans were lonely over the holidays. That I can guarantee. For even though the presence of the A. E. F. was supposed to be the darkest kind of secret, hundreds of Australians opened their homes for gala Christmas and New Year's celebrations.

This, it should be remembered, was the first foreign fighting force ever to come to the aid of Australia in the history of the island continent.

Barracks Provided

The Yanks soon moved into action. Officers' headquarters of the
A. E. F. took up several floors of one building; whole automobile showrooms contents were bought out to provide transportation facilities; trees were cut down to build barracks and houses were purchased.

hilarious jubilation. Official welthe enthusiasm was so great in impossible to get through the crowds. All this happened despite the fact that our presence was a

Campaign For Crippled Children's Fund Nears

Pickaway county crippled children committee opens its annual Easter seal campaign Saturday with an appeal to all citizens of the city and county to support the program with liberal donations.

Fred C. Clark, chairman of the committee said he would mail letters to many residents of the city and county asking for their support. Organizations, churches and schools also will be asked to help.

According to a resolution adopted by the committee the funds shall be used only for the following purposes: 1. for children 18 years of age and under, whose legal residence is in Pickaway county; 2. For the treatment and care of children afflicted with infantile paralysis. Mild cases that show no evidence of paralysis shall receive the same consideration as the more severe cases; 3. For medical and surgical treatment of any crippled child, regardless of the cause of the crippled condition; 4. To provide orthopedic shoes, braces, splints, crutches, wheel-chairs, and other orthopedic appliances necessary for the treatment of the child.

The funds shall not be used to purchase glasses except in cases of strabismus, where glasses would be necessary to help straighten the eyes. The funds shall not be used for tonsil or appendicitis operations or for any other surgical or medical treatment not coming under the true classification of "crippled children," nor for the purchase of food, clothing, fuel or other forms of general relief and must be used only for indigent cases. BRICKER'S NAME GOES ON PAPERS FOR THIRD TERM

1,000 Nomination Petitions To Be Distributed By Governor's Friends

FORMAL ENTRY AWAITED

Republican, By Winning Post Again, Would Be Setting Precedent In State

COLUMBUS, March 19 — The third term candidacy of Gov. John W. Bricker became official today as the state's chief executive signed 1,000 nomination papers to be put in circulation within a week by Republican friends throughout Ohio.

However, word from his office that he had signed the papers which will make him eligible for the primary on August 11 was not accompanied by any formal declaration that he would seek his party's nomination for the third term.

First indications that Bricker would actually run came on October 11 during seventh district Republican gatherings at Lebanon and Springfield when Rep. Joseph T. Martin of Massachusetts, Republican national chairman, visited the state.

Seventh district Republicans subsequently voted to "draft" the governor for another term and today Donald C. Power, his secretary in chief, said that Republican groups in 81 of the state's 88 counties had sent in formal written endorsements.

The other seven have sent informal endorsements and will soon forward written endorsements, Power said.

May Set Precedent

If Bricker should win, he would be the first Republican ever to win three terms as governor. Only two other men, James A. Cox and Vic Donahey, both Democrats, have served three terms and only Donahey's were consecutive. Cox served one term, was defeated once and then re-elected twice.

Now that the nomination papers are being distributed, it is expected that Bricker will make a formal declaration, but probably not until just before the filing deadline on June 11.

Although he is the fourth candidate for his party's nomination, neither the governor nor his friends is worried about the others. One is Herbert Hoover, a state employee from Akron; the second, Louis Berkowitz, a Cincinnati fruit dealer, and the third, Edward L. Lansing of Cleveland, who advocates $30 a week pensions for all persons over 55.

The Democratic lists are not nearly so clearly cut. The party is not united so far on any one candidate, although the greatest strength is believed to be behind State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, whose papers have been out for a few weeks.

Ferguson's chief opposition to date is Clarence H. Knisley, former state treasurer and present member of the industrial commission, who has just told the governor he will resign in June.

The third Democratic candidate is Frank Dye, a Columbus man who has previously been a candidate for many offices.

The ocean sunfish is a lazy, clumsy species of fish, with limited swimming abilities. It often attains a weight of 1,500 pounds. It has no economical value.

Brendan McPeake

Brendan McPeake, managing director of the National Magazine Company and head of William Randolph Hearst's publishing enterprises in England, is pictured above as he arrived in New York via Clipper plane. McPeake will confer with publishers here on measures to be taken to meet restrictions that might be imposed because of war.

MORE FARMERS URGED TO LIST EMPLOYMENT NEEDS

One out of every four farmers in Pickaway county who were sent labor surveys has returned his questionnaire.

Of the 600 cards returned, about 10 percent of them ask for regular farm help, either single or married. Others state that help will be needed during peak production periods this summer.

The employment office urged those farmers who have not yet returned their questionnaires to do so immediately.

4,000 TICKETS TO OHIO FAIR ARRIVE FOR PUPILS

Four thousand tickets to next fall's Ohio State Fair arrived at the county school superintendent's office Wednesday and will be distributed to the rural school superintendents at their next regular meeting.

The pupil must sign the ticket and list his age. The tickets are not transferable. They may be used any one day of the fair, provide they are presented before 12 noon. Pupils must agree to participate in the all-Ohio school parade on the day on which they present the ticket.

The fair will be held August 29, 30 and 31 and on September 1, 2, 3 and 4.

JONES UP FOR PAROLE
WASHINGTON C. H., March 19 — Henry W. Jones, former Fayette county sheriff and county commissioner, who was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary for obtaining signatures under pretense in which considerable money was involved, will be eligible for parole on May 1.

TOP PRICE FOR WOOL IS FIXED BY U. S. OFFICE

County Agricultural Agent E. K. Blair announced ceiling prices Wednesday for Pickaway county wool growers as established by the Office of Price Administration.

Grade of wool and price for each pound follow: fine combing or Delaine, 48 cents; 1/2 blood combing, 51 1/2 cents; 3/4 blood combing, 55 cents; 1/4 blood combing, 54 1/2 cents; low 1/4 and braid, 53 cents; fine clothing, 43 cents; medium clothing, 51 cents.

There are approximately 19,000 head of sheep in the county, producing annually between 130,000 and 140,000 pounds of wool. Figuring 45 cents as an average price, wool products should bring Pickaway county farmers more than $60,000 this year. The county agent pointed out that the price ceilings on coarse short grades of wool were higher than those on the fine long grades, since army blankets and uniforms are made from the coarser grades.

You Can Help Keep Good Gas Service Under War Conditions

Automobile and tire rationing, and a shrinkage in available, trained manpower are making themselves felt in the gas business — and will increase as time goes on. Certain changes of policy which we regret, but are beyond our control, have been made necessary. Yet, with the cooperation of our customers, we believe that high standards of service can be rendered to every user. The Gas Company is pledging itself to do its part and by reading this message you can learn how your help is necessary.

Please Give Reasonable Notice On Requests For Service

Service calls make heavy demands on automobiles, tires and manpower. By handling your service requests along with the regular routing of our trucks, much of this can be saved. Usually customers know several days ahead when they will require service but it has become a rather common habit to notify The Gas Company at the last minute, necessitating a special call. Such requests include turning gas on and off as in moving, appliance adjustments, pressure investigations and similar work. In the future the following policy is necessary —

Except in cases of suspected hazard or extreme emergency, a minimum of 24 hours' notice will be required for service calls in communities where service crews are maintained, and in towns serviced from other communities such calls must conform to a less frequent schedule of routing trucks.

The more notice you can give, the more nearly we can try to conform to your schedule. Please make every effort to be at home when such appointments are made so that your request can be handled in one call. Under this plan some few customers may experience temporary inconvenience, but we do not believe any real hardships will result.

Collectors Are Discontinued

To save tires, automobiles and manpower for essential maintenance of gas service, the use of outside bill collectors is being discontinued, and this policy is now effective —

The use of collectors is being discontinued in such communities which heretofore were large enough to justify their use, and in smaller towns other employees will no longer be assigned part time to this work. Customers who have past-due bills and who have not established a record of prompt payment will receive a notice of discontinuing service which will be enforced on the next scheduled round of the service truck after the effective date of the notice. A charge of One Dollar ($1.00) will be made for turning on gas after service has been discontinued for non-payment of the bill.

Again, The Gas Company has no desire to bring undue hardships to any gas user. Those having emergency cases worthy of consideration for further extension of credit are asked to contact our offices. Service men are not authorized to deal with such cases when calling to make a turn-off.

Should the program to attain Victory necessitate other changes in our operating policies, you will be advised at the earliest possible time.

COLUMBUS, March 19—All but conceded the five-man title, the Chicago Budweisers rested far in front of the field today in the 42nd annual Bowling Congress championship following a sensational 3,131 count yesterday.

ANNUAL CLASS B TOURNEY BEGINS IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, March 19—Sixteen of the state's best Class B high school basketball teams today opened a three-day tournament which will determine the Ohio champion in the small school division.

The tournament was being played on strange grounds, the Wittenberg College gymnasium. It marked the first time in years that the tourney had not been held at the Fairgrounds coliseum at Columbus. Holding of the American Bowling Congress there, however, forced a change in scenes.

The firing was to start at 1 p. m. with Bremen, winner of 23 straight games this season, opposing New Washington winner of 15 out of 19.

The other afternoon games bring together the following:

Wyoming (15-7) vs. Lorain Clearview (23-0).

Bluffton (16-4) vs. Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home (15-3).

Yorkville (20-7) vs. Marion St. Marys (13-8).

The four games on the docket tonight are scheduled to begin at 7 o'clock in this order:

Webster township (23-1) vs. Fairport Harbor (21-2).

Somerset (22-6) vs. Tipp City (21-1).

Latham W. Rural (31-3) vs. Waynesburg (25-3).

Gnadenhutzen (20-1) vs. Ottawa Hills (15-3).

Eleven of the teams are making their first trip to the state tourney. The newcomers are in Bremen, Fairport Harbor, Gnadenhutzen, Latham Western Rural, Lorain Clearview, Marion St. Mary, New Washington, Webster township of Pemberville, Somerset, Ottawa Hills and Yorkville.

years, the Budweisers roared along toward their first title with a consistent 1,049-1,050-1,032 series while four other quintets succeeded in riddling the "high-ten" leader lists.

It was Joe Traubenik who carried the squad along the trail leading to the $1,500 first place award with a terrific 682 series while Anchor-man Joe Wilman contributed 656, and only lead-off Bill Hargadon failed to better par 600.

Only four teams ever have bettered the 3,131 count of the "Buds" and in each instance the score was worth the championship. Vogel Brewing of Forest Park, Ill., the defending champion.

Meanwhile a few alleys away, Gimbel's Linsz classic of Cleveland rocketed into second place—after holding the lead for some 10 minutes—with a 2,892 tally behind a brilliant 1,063 finale, the current tourney's high single game.

Overlooked McClanahan's restaurant of Lancaster, O., took command of four place with a 2,876 count while the Burlington Zephyrs of Chicago went into seventh place with 2,803 and Varga Crystal Rocks of Cleveland accounted for eighth place 11 pins to the rear with 2,792.

RURAL TREND

PEOPLE in various areas are said to be moving from the cities into the country, buying an acre or so of land and making gardens and settling down to a combination city and rural existence. This trend has existed for some time and seems stronger now. Land values have been rising but are not so high as they were some years ago.

This movement represents partly a normal love for rural life and freedom and partly, no doubt, a quest for security. With a home and garden paid for and producing some of the family living, by an effort that is about half play and half thrift, people feel safer in these uncertain times. And probably all will be well as long as rural transportation doesn't fail. The automobile situation raises some doubts about that, although it seems unlikely that railroads and bus lines should quit.

But how will it be after the war, if this trend continues? Will cities stop growing and run down? Or will they be refreshed, rebuilt and modernized on a bigger scale than ever? Anybody who knows the answer, and has money or credit, might do very well for himself. On the other hand, a confident plunger might easily ruin himself. It isn't likely that anybody knows what the financial, realty and political situation will be five or ten years from now.

THRILLER TECHNIQUE

THE ingenuity of the detective story never fails to surprise. Once they were all on one plan. Suspects were introduced one after another, only to be cleared in turn. The experienced reader soon learned this, and fastened his suspicions on the character who remained in the background.

That worked out all right, unless the writer adopted the mean trick of selecting for his villain a brother from Australia who was not mentioned in the book until his appearance in the last chapter. Public opinion soon ended such practices.

Much more subtle ways of concealing the criminal are now in vogue. One ingenious writer made the narrator the murderer, a fact no one would have guessed until the last pages. In another story suspicion pointed to no fewer than thirteen persons. It turned out that all were guilty, each having made some contribution toward the death of the victim.

With such triumphs of cleverness already achieved, only one seems to be left. A fortune awaits the author who will write a mystery story in which the criminal turns out to be the reader.

WAGES AND PROFITS

WASHINGTON — Inside fact about the current quarrel over inflation and the farm bill is that sage old Bernie Baruch long ago warned the President, Leon Henderson and the inner circle that they could not stop inflation if they put the brake only on prices.

"Price-fixing is like a four-legged chair," Baruch warned them. "It won't stand long on two legs or even three."

There is no use regulating consumer prices, he said, unless you also regulate profits, also wages, also farm prices. If one of them gets out of hand, the others will too.

Baruch, who was head of the War Industries Board in the last war, has been harping on this point for months. He urged Congress more than a year ago to adopt a very high excess profits tax to take away all the war profits from industry; and at the same time he urged the President to clamp down on wages as well as prices.

The President actually got a little irritated at Baruch's pounding away on this theme. Today, however, chief resentment of the farm belt is not so much against Roosevelt's urging that farm prices be kept down, but over the fact that labor's income has skyrocketed while the farmer's hasn't. Furthermore, the farmer complains that he has to pay a lot more for his labor—when he can get it at all—but he can't increase his farm prices proportionately.

BRITISH RED TAP

"There'll always be an England," but U. S. fliers now trying to save India are wondering why. British officials in India don't want them to enter India until 31 days after they have taken yellow fever shots. By that time the Japanese, who don't have to observe the 31 day rule, may obviate the need of U. S. fliers going to India at all.

To rumors that Ambassador John Winant will take Miss Perkins' place as Secretary of Labor, he says: "Why have all the headaches of a cabinet job?" He indicates that the job of being Ambassador to Great Britain is much more interesting. However, rumors persist that Winant will remain in Washington and that Secretary of War Stimson will replace him in London. . . . The blunt report on disastrous losses at Java is interpreted by some as paving the way for Frank Knox's exit as Secretary of the Navy. . . . Miss Marguerite LeHand, long-time secretary to the President, is back in the White House after eight months illness, part of the time at Warm Springs. If the people around Roosevelt break down, imagine what kind of a constitution he has. . . . Sumner Welles used to telephone the President from Rio de Janeiro at around midnight. That meant 2 a. m. Washington time. The President was still working.

High Blood Pressure Cases Not Benefited by Surgery

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE been asked to comment on the attempts of surgery to treat high blood pressure. The only reason I am willing to say anything at all is that I think a word of caution is appropriate.

This is not only my opinion; it coincides with the views of most of the men I know who have had Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The largest experience with high blood pressure patients I have just looked over a group of patients treated by one form of surgery or another for high blood pressure; not one of them was benefited; most of them were worse.

In the first place, what is high blood pressure? Dr. Irvine H. Page, of Indianapolis, has published a classification showing there are 47 kinds of high blood pressure.

High blood pressure is a raise in pressure by the heart because it is working against increased tension in the blood vessels—the arteries. Some of Dr. Page's forms of high blood pressure are due to spasm of the arteries and here the surgeon might do some good by removing the cause of the spasms. But most of them are due to hardening of the arteries, loss of elasticity, and this is a condition all over the body.

The surgeons go on the theory that this hardening and loss of elasticity is due first to spasm brought on by some gland or nerves. But the men who know most about it think the organic change comes first.

One surgeon believes the thyroid gland causes the spasm. There is really little, if any, reason to believe there is any truth in this. Others believe the sympathetic nerves get disordered and cause the spasm, so they recommend taking out the nerves. I heard a surgeon read a paper on this. In the back of the hall the internal medical man who worked in the same hospital with him said, "He never heard of high blood pressure till two years ago. And two years from now, when he's tried all this out, he won't remember what it is."

Another theory is that the adrenal gland gives out extra secretion and causes the spasm. We know the adrenal gland secretes a substance—adrenalin—that does raise blood pressure. But is this the mechanism of the condition? The adrenal glands are not enlarged in high blood pressure; they are actually smaller than normal.

LENTEN REDUCING DIET

By Dr. Clendening

(For Friday—650 calories)
Efficient, Balanced, Satisfying

BREAKFAST
1 glass orange juice (Vitamin C—50 calories); 1 Holland rusk (75 calories)—Vitamin B; 1 cup coffee—no cream or sugar.

LUNCH
1 egg poached on spinach with hot catsup sauce (150 calories); 1 slice toast (75 calories); 1 slice canned pineapple (50 calories—roughage); 1 cup tea—no cream or sugar.

DINNER
1 cup clear vegetable soup (satisfies appetite); average helping of broiled, baked or boiled fish (150 calories); 2 tablespoonsful cucumber ring (roughage—50 calories); 1 vanilla cup custard (50 calories); 1 small cup coffee—no cream or sugar.

Still another theory is that the kidney causes high blood pressure. It was shown in experimental work on animals that if a clamp is put on the artery going to the kidney, it causes blanching (ischemic) areas without blood and results in high blood pressure. So flemic kidneys must come out. But what nonsense!

Three out of five people over fifty-five years of age have some degree of high blood pressure. Do they all have blanching areas in one kidney? Anyway, hear what some experienced doctors say. "We studied one hundred and fifty examples of severe one-sided kidney damage. There was no high blood pressure in this group." And as a final consideration. Under medical management the treatment of high blood pressure gives quite good results—better than surgery. In the benign group, patients live twenty to forty years. In the malignant group, the surgeons do more harm than good.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
"WHO IS HE?" Lance Ericsson demanded of Anette.

She looked at the man whose intrusion had upset Lance's revenge, at cauliflower ears, at a shining front tooth of gold, at shoulders like those of a wrestler and decided through relief that swept over her like a cloud of exquisite perfume. "Why, he's the most beautiful man in the world!" Gesturing toward the actor, she said to the driver, "Lance Ericsson." Reversing the gesture, she said to Ericsson, "Lancelot Jenks."

Shaking with frustration, the leading man demanded, "What does he want here?" The girl's deep red mouth curved in a delighted smile. "I invited him. In fact, he's a very good friend of mine." She gathered the many folds of tulle, hissing taffeta into her hands and prepared to descend the steps to her cubbyhole of a dressing room. "I'll get dressed, Lancelot."

He nodded without removing his sourly hostile gaze from Lance Ericsson. "I'm gonna drive Miss Winslow to her hotel. I came over to settle a little bet with her and while I'm settling things I might as well settle with you."

The actor put his pin-punctured hand into his pocket. "Settle what?"

"That's for you to say. When I came in, you acted like you were looking for trouble and I just wanted to say you needn't look no farther." Jenks chewed his gum with a methodical, sidewise slinging of his jaws and watched the changing expressions on the face of the actor.

"Don't you think you're butting into something that doesn't concern you?"

Still calmly pleased, Jenks assured him, "I like to butt in, whether it's my business or not. Especially when I see someone tramping all over a poor little girl."

"Tramping on her?" Ericsson's original intention dissolved. He yanked his hidden injured hand from his pocket and thrust it before the taxi driver's grotesquely shaped face. "Look what that poor little girl, you call her, did to me. What have you to say about that?"

Jenks's eyes swept downward, lingered a brief moment on pin scratches and minute bloodclots, then sailed upward again to meet those of the actor with a bull-headed, yet bland defiance. "I don't see nothing the matter with your hand."

"Why, you obstinate liar!" yelled Lance Ericsson. "I'm going to have you thrown out of here."

"Don't get too big for your britches!" Jenks told him. "You'd better go change your clothes—and if your dressing room is down by here, a mother's forehead glared, Ericsson subsided. "My room is over there." He slung his hand over his right shoulder.

"Then get it in—first, just let me tell you one more thing. I can't be here watching you every night, but you'd better not pull anything crooked, because you'll have to come out sometime and when you do, I'll bust you wide open."

"Why Lancelot?" Larry wanted to know as Jenks was driving them to the theater on Sunday night. "It can't be his real name." Anette leaned still closer. Inside her husband's encircling arm. "It isn't," she said dreamily. "I named him that because he was so kind to me when I first arrived in New York." She did not intend for Larry to know about Jenks' protection against Lance Ericsson. She did not intend for him to know anything about Lance Ericsson. "It's a helpful and brave man and worthy of the name."

Peyton said softly, "Maybe so, but I'll bet he isn't exactly what Queen Guinevere had in mind."

"Why, he's beautiful!" the girl insisted in a giggling whisper. She turned her dark head on Larry's shoulder and suddenly all the amusement left her face; it became white and serious. "Oh, Larry! Larry—Larry—Larry!" Oblivious to anyone who might see, she put both arms about his neck and kept them there. "I love you so much and I'm so glad you're here. I'm so happy that I'll probably cry in the delirious flirtatious scene of the first act and laugh like a bubbling geyser in the weeping scene of the last act—oh, darling, I know it sounds like a line of sheeted humor, but it seems as if we've been apart for years."

Larry did not even smile as he managed to hold her still tighter. "It seems years to me, too."

When Jenks, grinning from ear to ear, let them out of the cab, Anette said, "You're coming in, of course, Larry?"

"After having kicked you out of the theater in Chicago—don't be foolish! But I'll walk back with you."

She protested, "Chicago was different. You were a star and a star must not be upset. It doesn't matter about me. I'm such a very small part of this play."

"Oh, you are, are you?" Larry took her elbow and marched her toward the stage entrance. "Do you know what I did and said as my first part? I wore a train conductor's uniform—three sizes too small—and said, 'Tickets, please.' Anette chuckled. "And what else?"

"Nothing else. That was all of it. There were only two passengers in the coach. And you say you have a small part. You don't know what a small part is. And you probably never will!" In the semi-privacy of the stage door he took her into his arms. "Besides, I want to see you from front and be very proud. And I want to visit during intermission and hear a stack of compliments about you." A man brushed past them and hurried on into the building. "Ericsson, wasn't it?"

"Possibly. I didn't see him very well." She instructed in a partly serious, partly jesting voice, "Yes, dear, be sure to do most of your visiting with the columnists and critics."

The instant Anette entered the theater Lance Ericsson pounced on her with a greeting, brutally impudent, "I see you weren't getting publicly enough alone. You had to drag your famous husband over here."

Childishly, the girl answered first the attack on her vanity. "I didn't drag him. He came on his own accord and because he loves me." Her inky black lashes tightened. "If I liked publicity as much as you do, I'd write my name on a blackboard a hundred times a day, then just sit back and admire it. I told you when those stories ran that I didn't like them, that they embarrassed me. Perhaps you'll believe me now that Larry is here to counteract them."

That was what his visit actually amounted to, Anette decided, when the precious days had slipped by with a "vague speed and they stood waiting at the airport for the plane that would take Larry back to Chicago. Just a businesslike schedule. Crowded hours, but undeniably they had accomplished their purpose, for all newspaper comment stressed the Laurence Peytons' happy marriage, also Peyton's generosity in leaving his own hit to see his wife in her first role.

Gleeful and slightly wild over the chance to combine ideas, the press agents of "Orchids Can Choke You" and "The Violent Flame" had seen to it that Anette and Larry were perpetually on parade for reporters and cameramen. They were photographed sauntering along Fifth Avenue, having their shoes shined by a grinning Negro boy, selling favors and a charity garden party, dancing at snobbishly popular clubs, even at the airport.

A sympathetic cameraman sensed Anette's mood and said, "Let's make this the last one, boys. What do you say?"

Another hoisted his camera. "Okay. But make it good."

"Yeh," shouted a third one. "Give us a love scene."

Larry's response was quick. "A pleasure, gentlemen." He removed his hat and the bright spring sunlight raced over his dark hair. Anette had a brief instant to admire the handsome figure he made in tailored slacks and a lightweight tuxedo sport coat, before she was taken into his arms and kissed with professional skill, for cheering photographers and an appreciative audience.

Immediately after, Larry led her to as secluded a spot as it was possible to find and really kissed her. "That's goodbye, my sweet darling. And if you cry, I'll beat your brains out!" He pulled a narrow velvet box from his pocket and opened it. "Now, will you please take that alarm clock off your wrist?"

Anette's breath caught in her throat. "Oh, Larry, how beautiful. Look how it shines. Why, Larry, it's alive! I'll bet it could get right up from there and walk away."

The man chuckled. "Well, see that it doesn't."

"But how?" she asked, as he clasped it about her wrist.

"Oh," he told her, elaborately casual, "I picked out a pretty little filly and told her to run fast so I could buy my beloved a diamond watch—well, she ran fast and here's the watch." With a rush of words, he erased her reproachful expression. "Now, stop looking like a cranky, righteous wife. Everyone is happy, including the horse. It will keep you company on your long ride back to the city—the watch, not the horse!"

It also kept her company during the performance, expertly hidden beneath a bracelet of wild flowers, in keeping with her gypsy costume. There were more flowers in her dressing room after the final curtain. Enormous rosebuds, of soft pink. Sweet, sweet Larry, she thought, and dug for the card. They were from James Lyndon. WORLD AT A GLANCE

"SURPLUS currency!" The Federal Reserve Bank of New York employs the term in one of its latest monthly review. It's used in connection with a discussion of means of sopping up as much of the surplus, which, it's predicted, certainly will inflate prices or cheapen our money (two different ways of saying the same thing) if it isn't held down to a minimum.

Charles Henderson

What I'd like to know is, though: "Who's got any such surplus now?"

Treasury officials, however, say the reserve bank is quite right about it. They endorse every word in the entire article.

Among other things, it warns bankers generally against making loans to individuals to help pay their income taxes. It's explained that these taxes have been hiked and are being hiked higher yet, not only because Uncle Sam needs the cash, but also to foreclose the public against having a nickel's worth of surplusage left after it has satisfied the revenue collector. And, of course, it'll have a temporarily remaining medium, if it can borrow the dough for the present. True, it'll have its borrowings to liquidate later, and that, when the time comes, undoubtedly will send its surplus up the flue. The treasury doesn't want to wait until then, though; it wants that surplus evaporated with no delay at all.

I can understand that folk may be well advised not to postpone the agony. Quite likely it'll be still worse when it belatedly sets in. However, the taxpayers' ultimate welfare isn't what the reserve bank's thinking about. Its aim is to desuperlize them immediately.

Bonds Out of Incomes

The bank makes another suggestion, which perhaps has a certain merit, directly to income recipients, though that isn't made intentionally for their benefit, either, but as a surplus-reducing recommendation.

Some few people have a little cash saved up, in bank accounts—"hoarded," as the reserve bank expresses it.

Well, a vigorous campaign is being waged to induce thrifty souls to invest in defense bonds. Their inclination is to do it out of their already accumulated hoards, spending their current incomes for immediate living requirements. This immediate spending is what the reserve bank is anxious to curtail, since it'll be more and more inflationary as civilian supplies grow scarcer and scarcer and buyers start bidding for them competitively. Accordingly, the bank's plan is to persuade them to do their defense bond buying out of their day-to-day incomes, forcing them to economize on everything else.

To be sure, they previously saved up hoards as a surplus also, but that's a surplus that's more or less frozen; the average citizen, who may be willing to blow in all he makes, as he goes along, is apt to be reluctant to tap his bank account to meet deficits. He'll pinch himself instead.

It'll lower his living standard to do, naturally, but possibly it's sound economic reasoning, as to the long run.

Just what the long run is going to be like nobody knows. Preventing a post-war depression in advance never has been tried before. How it will work this time it will take the future to tell.

One Type Loan Urged

While the Federal Reserve Bank of New York doesn't want private banks making loans to income taxpayers, Chairman Charles B. Henderson of the Reconstruction Finance corporation wants them to loan liberally to small manufacturers, to enable them to readjust their plants for war production. He urged a bankers' meeting in New York City recently to be as accommodating about it as they can, believing it to be money safely invested financially and essential for war needs.

The RFC will attend to it if necessary, he said, but it's a program he doesn't like to complicate the government with any more than is unavoidable.

Attorney General Francis Biddle is on the discussion with comment of his own. Our-war effort, he emphasized at a big meeting some evenings ago, mustn't put a crimp into the New Deal's long-run socioeconomic program. A lot of editorial and congressional comment is to the effect that it can't help doing so.

New Dealers hope for the best. Anti-New Dealers hope for the best from their angle. We'll see.

Not all of the Phil Spitalny all-girl orchestras' appearances at army camps are being broadcast. For instance, troupe will be at Chapman Field, Fla., March 24 and 28 and the Quantico Marine

One of the most versatile orchestral units in radio is that conducted by Frank Black on "For America We Sing." On last week's program, for instance, Black led the musicians through such widely different numbers as Ferde Grofe's "Mardi Gras," Sousa's "King Cotton March" and the Episcopal hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

garding Charles F. Palmer, ex-coordinator of Defense Housing.

They discovered that in 1935, Palmer had almost been asked to resign from a local housing project in Atlanta, Georgia, because he split architects' and real estate commissions of $60,000.

Palmer was not then employed by the Government, and the split commissions were to compensate him for work he had done in promoting a low cost housing project, later completed by the Public Works Administration.

However, the PWA Division of Investigation, after probing the matter, "recommended that the Housing Division exercise caution to see that split commissions do not prevail on any housing project in the future."

Also, A. R. Clas, Director of PWA housing, reported as follows regarding Palmer:

"The report does not disclose any dishonesty on Mr. Palmer's part. . . but it has cast a doubt in my mind of Mr. Palmer's unselfish interest in the projects, and thus I am not sure of his motives in urging local control of the management."

"I have felt for some time that the Committee (in Atlanta) as a result of Mr. Palmer's activities has been making no effort to reconcile the difficulties between the city and the government, but rather using the objections as a club to induce the government to turn over such profits to it. . . I do not believe it is desirable to ask for Mr. Palmer's resignation at this time, although I feel the committee would function better without him."

Most significant fact is that despite this, the reorganized Public Works Administration actually promoted Palmer to the vitally important job of Defense Housing Coordinator where he has served until recently. Finally, however, he was eased out of the housing picture by a trip to inspect housing in England.

U. S. Ambassador To Russia

Friends are predicting that Admiral William H. Standley will do an outstanding job as U. S. Ambassador to Russia, but he still can't believe it's true that he is going there.

"Russia is about the last place I figured the President would send me," he confides to friends, "because of something that happened back in 1934."

Standley was then Chief of Naval Operations and caused a storm of isolationist protests by ordering fleet maneuvers in the far Pacific. Letters poured in on Congress and the Navy Department, charging that the maneuvers would be an "affront" to Russia and Japan.

"A number of the letters lambasted me as anti-Russian," Standley recalls, "and there was so much agitation that I finally withdrew the order. However, it seemed logical to me to hold maneuvers and work out tactical problems in waters in which we might have to fight some day."

How right his judgment was has been amply proved by recent events. Also, if there were any lingering doubts about Standley's friendship for Russia, they were dispelled last year when he went there as a member of the U. S. lend-lease mission.

"A week after we arrived," Standley relates, "and while a lot of people were selling Russia short, I predicted that its army would not quit fighting and would eventually lick the Nazis. I'm prouder of that prediction than any I ever made."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Inside word is that by fall men's clothing will be up 20 to 30 percent over current prices. . . It will take more than one billion pounds of food to feed the U. S. Navy this year. Like the U. S. Army, the Navy is the best fed in the world. . . Plans are under way to increase iron ore production this year to 88,000,000 tons. This is ten percent more than in 1940, which was the second highest production period in U. S. history. . . A postcard from a Moscow town addressed to "George Washington, Washington, D. C.", inquiring about the color of the First President's hair was forwarded by postal officials to Representative Sol Bloom of N. Y., leading Washington authority in the Capital.

Council To Vote More Powers For Mayor Gordon

OFFICIAL GIVEN MORE AUTHORITY IN EMERGENCIES

Organization Approve Adding Up To 100 More Meters In Uptown Area

$113.98 MORE RECEIVED

Boyd Horn Asks Survey Of Safety, Health Situation In South End

Step to prepare Circleville for war emergency was taken at city council Wednesday night when councilmen discussed legislation which would give the mayor emergency power to act without a vote of council.

Following the discussion, councilmen instructed Solicitor Joseph W. Adkins to prepare an ordinance granting the mayor certain powers now vested in the council. The ordinance will be presented to council at its next regular session.

The legislation would give the mayor power to appoint emergency police and firemen, or declare certain danger zones in the city. It also would give him power to act should the city's water, power or light supply be disrupted.

Solicitor Adkins pointed out that such legislation was in keeping with that passed by other cities in the interests of national defense and he recommended that an ordinance carry such provisions be passed.

To Add Meters

Further expansion of the city's meter program seems probable, following council action Wednesday night, when council authorized the board of control to lease 100 more meters from the Dual Meter company. Councilmen do not believe that 100 meters will be necessary to complete the meter program, but John Robbins, meter company representative who appeared at the meeting said that any meters which were not used might be returned. Under the provisions of the present meter ordinance, it will take 57 or 58 meters to complete the program.

The ordinance now in effect calls for meters on Main street from Scioto to the first alley east of Court, on Court street from Watt street to the first alley south of Franklin street and on the north side of Franklin street from Court to the first alley east of Court.

At present there are no meters on East Main street, none on Court south of Franklin and none on East Franklin.

$113.98 Collected

Second collection from the meters was completed Wednesday and City Auditor Lillian Young reported that the collection totaled $113.98. The amount is considerably larger than the first, although meters had been in operation two days longer than on the first collection.

Councilman Boyd Horn of the fourth ward asked council to consider water installation in the Clinton street area, that it investigate possibilities of eliminating dangerous conditions due to south end railroad crossings and that it study certain south end properties which should be "cleaned up." All three matters were referred to committees.

John Goeller, president of council, was absent and Frank Lynch, president pro tem, presided at the meeting.

34 PERSONS EXAMINED IN COUNTY CHEST CLINIC

Thirty-four persons were examined at the chest clinic, conducted at the county health office Wednesday.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, said that no new cases of tuberculosis were found.

The clinic was under the direction of Dr. M. D. Miller of the Franklin county sanitarium.

COLUMBUS, March 19—High school seniors seeking work after graduation this spring will be registered under a plan completed today by the U. S. Registration will commence within the next few weeks in rural areas, it was announced by Wade Hammond, State Director of U. S. Employment Service.

Hammond predicted that many of the graduates who have had shop training will be placed immediately in war production jobs. Registration is being undertaken early, Hammond said, to avoid a last minute rush and place the young workers in jobs at the earliest possible moment.

Child Conservation Play, 'Sleeping Beauty', To Be Presented On March 27

The world of fairy-tale enchantment will be brought to the footlights for our youngsters Friday, March 27, at 1:30 p. m., when the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre presents "Sleeping Beauty" at the Cliftona theatre under the sponsorship of the Child Conservation league.

The legend of the beautiful princess willed to a 100-year sleep on her 16th birthday and awakened by the prince who loves her is one that exists in the folklore of almost every civilization, including the Hindu and Egyptian.

Mrs. Major's stage adaptation is based on an ancient version which has dramatic intensity not found in the later French and English recordings of the tale. The prince, in the version used, arrives at the princess' palace on her 16th birthday in order to ask the king for her hand. Poignantly, the princess pricks her finger on the miniature distaff brought as a gift by the prince, who has come from lands so distant that he has never heard of the fate wished on the youngest, most cherished, member of this palace. How the price induces the good fairy to see that after a hundred years he is neither aged nor changed is another dramatic element not found in more commonly known versions.

Pervaded as it is with love and beauty, this fairy tale lends itself especially well to stage entertainment for youngsters and Mrs. Major's presentation is enhanced by colorful medieval costumes as well as incidental court music and dancing. Required by the demands of theatre to supply details of everyday life where the fairy tale relates only the story, Mrs. Major has used such details as a vehicle for humor, without which no play can thoroughly please a child audience.

A pert, glib page bobs in and out of scenes ruffling the edge of the chief guard's dignity, and on the day when the princess turns 16 there is the delightfully human tomfoolery of her friends banging their heads against the floor in mock reverence and otherwise burlesquing their servitude to a beloved playmate who has just arrived at the stage where she has her own throne-room and may receive her own guests.

JOHN KIRKPATRICK SAVES SON FROM FIRE IN HOME

Circleville relatives of Mr. and Mrs. John Kirkpatrick of Washington D. C. have received word from them that fire had struck their home, destroying all their clothes and other necessities. The fire happened last Thursday.

Mr. Kirkpatrick was sitting in the living room when he noticed smoke coming from the upstairs. He ran to a bedroom where his four-month-old son, David, was sleeping. Flames had started to burn the crib in which the baby slept, but he was removed without injury.

The flames were caused by defective wiring.

BRICKER'S AIDE HURT

COLUMBUS, March 19—Donald C. Power, secretary to Governor Bricker, was in a Columbus hospital suffering a fracture of the left ankle. Power was injured when he tripped on a rubber stair tread at the Herbert S. Atkinson home last night. Last July, Power fractured the same ankle in a fall from a horse and weakness of the leg from the previous injury was responsible for the heel of his shoe catching on the stair tread, he said.
